2019 Keynote Speaker

Dr. Kevin J. Tracey

President & CEO

Feinstein Institute for Medical Research

Dr. Kevin J. Tracey is the president and chief executive officer of Northwell Health's Feinstein Institute for Medical Research, where he oversees 50 research labs and 4,000 staff members, who have conducted 2,500 clinical trials and filed more than 230 patents, publishing over 1,300 research papers per year. He is also the author of Fatal Sequence: The Killer Within, on the causes of sepsis, published by Dana Press.

Appointed president and CEO of the Feinstein Institute in 2005, Dr. Tracey's research focuses on inflammation and the role of the brain in controlling the immune system. He invented electronic devices targeting nerves to stop inflammation. These have been implanted in patients to treat rheumatoid arthritis and inflammatory bowel disease, launching a new field of bioelectronic medicine that he pioneers to this day.

Dr. Tracey received his B.S. in chemistry from Boston College and his M.D. from Boston University, then trained at New York Hospital / Cornell University. He went on to join Northwell Health in 1992, where he founded the Laboratory of Biomedical Science in Manhasset, New York, which he has continued to oversee after his 2005 appointment as president and CEO of the Feinstein Institute.

Along with numerous citations and lectureships, Dr. Tracey has been recognized with an honorary doctorate from the Kalinska Institute. He is a member of the American Society for Clinical Investigation, a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and serves as editor-in-chief for the medical journal Bioelectronic Medicine. He is married and has four daughters.
